to the waist under a girlish of velvet. Bright touches of green, gold and coral pink in the embroidery give a cheerful touch to the revers.

The entire costume calls for 5 yards 44-inch material, with 1 yard panne velvet for the trimming, but today's dressmaking lesson is limited to the construction of the waist. As no lining is required, the work will be appreciably simplified. The front edge of the front must be properly underlaid at the start, and this is about 1 inch inside of the line of small "o" perforations. Roll over on small "o" perforations to form revers and stitch upper edge of revers to position. Turn hem at front edge on vest at notches; large

"O" perforations indicate center-front. Adjust to position underneath front, bringing the folded edge of revers to line of small "o" perforations in vest, and stitch the back edge of vest to position invisibly to front section. Close under-arm and shoulder seams as notched. Gather lower edge of waist between double "TT" perforations and two inches above. Adjust stay to position underneath gathers.

For V-shaped neck it is necessary to cut out neck edge of vest on small "o" perforations. Now, sew the square collar to neck edge, having the center-back even and bring large "O" perforation to corresponding large "P" perforation in vest.

Coming to the sleeves, first pleat by bringing the "m" to corresponding small "o" perforations and tack. Close seams as notched, leaving extensions free; turn under extension on slot perforations, bring fold to small "o" perforations. Sew sleeve in armhole as notched, small "o" perforation at shoulder seam, easing in any fullness between double "TT" perforations.

LAURA JEAN LIBBY'S DAILY TALKS ON HEART TOPICS

Copyrighted, 1915, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

ARE SMILING OR INDEPENDENT GIRLS SOUGHT?

"For your sweetness hardly leaves me a choice, But to move to the meadows and fall before Her feet, in the meadow grass, and adore."

Light are the hearts of both smiling and independent girls, and those who would find out which is the dearest type of those girls, like as not, may fall in their attempt to consider the right one. For there are lovers who would never weary of one and tire quite so soon of the other kind.

Love has never known a law beyond its own sweet will, we have been told. Some men and themselves pleased and under an spell of the smiling witchery of the young woman whose every gift seems love and laughter. Others who do not care to pass their time with any other young companion but the independent girl, who is known to be precise and independent in her ways, says what she means, and means what she says.

She is not always talking of herself or keeping up guessing what desire she is keeping back. She is not shallow or usually siding in with every story lest she offends by giving her real opinion. Independent girls are not averse to coming out with simple truths, for fear that by so doing they will not be good friends with one who takes the opposite views. They stoop to no man's positive rule unless feeling confident he is fair and not forceful.

Love does not spring up in these maidens' hearts all at once. They follow what was taught them, that to reciprocate true love requires time and opportunities to know each other well. Hence they do not yield their hearts easily to those who seek them and who are in love with this young lady today and that one tomorrow. Keeping them at the distance, she is sought. As men often regard this:

"I dare not ask a kiss, I dare not beg a smile, Lest having that or this I might grow proud, the while."

If all men were attracted by the same style of young woman, the world would be equally divided. There are plenty of young men who think the smiling girl sweetest and fairest. Like are love with this young lady today and that one tomorrow. Keeping them at the distance, she is sought. As men often regard this:

Men will become enraptured by her smiles and her eyes. They have a preference for her. But who is her future if discontent enters their heads and they compare her with the independent girl unfavorably. In the years that come, each will have led and faced their lives' mysterious tomorrow.

MISS LIBBY'S REPLIES TO YOUR LETTERS

Miss Libby's answers to your letters. Correct name and address must be given to insure attention. Initials printed. Write short letters on one side of page only. Use ink. Personal letters cannot be answered. Address Miss Laura Jean Libby, No. 916 President Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

IN LOVE—THEN OUT OF IT.

Dear Miss Libby:—As a constant reader, I implore your aid. I am 17 years of age, keeping company with a boy nearly 24. Only a few times in my company, he asked me to marry him. Now he says he don't care if I go with others. Kindly advise.

A. B. It would appear that the young man jumped to the conclusion he wished to marry you, too soon. Those who fall for love who quickly climb "out" of it with equal speed. It is best to realize a mistake before, rather than after marriage, however. The young man evidently desires to break away slowly and by degrees giving you other opportunities in the meantime of falling in love with some one else with whom you may be brought into contact, severing with relief the vows which bind you to him, eager to plight new vows with a newer love. It is not natural for a man who loves and is betrothed to a girl to be eager to see her acting the part of a free lance among the beaux.

YOUNG LADY OF HIS CHOICE

Dear Miss Libby:—I am a young man of 24, acquainted with a girl of 18 while employed by her father. She always seemed to care for me, and I was sure she would when I left, we would forget one another. But we have corresponded for a year. I have been there several times since, stayed for a day or so. Even so, her father and mother would retire early, we would sit up quite late. I didn't think she was in love with me, but lately I began to think we are both in love. I never have "gone with her," I mean I never have taken her to dances, parties or theatres. She attends church regularly with other young ladies if I am not there. I never attend church. Formerly she was keeping company with a young man of my age; he married in a short time. She has gone with no one since. He and I are the best of friends. She doesn't want me to have anything to do with him. Should I? Would you advise me to write to her asking her to go to some public gathering, or would it be better to wait and see for sure whether she would go? I never have kept steady company with any young lady, and only have a few several times each. This one always asks me to call whenever I can.

W. A. C. It would be better to write and ask her to go to some public gathering with you. There is no reason for you to seek the friend's company, as he is married. It is displeasing to her, and will not help you in your cause.

HUSBAND SHOULD PROTECT HER

Dear Miss Libby:—

Kindly advise me what to do. I am married four years. My husband's family never did like me. Since last year they succeeded in turning my husband against me. He insults me, calls me names that go right to my heart. Discouraged, I tried to end all relations with them, but they have much influence over him. He doesn't care what they do to me or say to me. If one of my friends comes to see me, they don't like her to put them out. I am without friends now. My husband works until 11 at night. If he stays out late I ask him please to try and come home soon as possible; that I am alone in the house. He answers: "If you don't like the way I'm doing, quit." That he's sorry he married me. If he were to sever my heart, he could not hurt me more. Please tell me what to do. I have no relatives I could go to. I've stood so much; he never says a kind word, calls me boy face; that it's good the way his sisters treat me. If I only have one more to trust, take me away. Am tired of all, I worked before I married. My heart was happy. My heart is broken. I will do something that I should not do. Please answer soon.

N. F. We all know that it is darkest just before day in life. Write him an earnest, appealing letter. Have a heart-to-heart talk if possible with him. Do not give up hope that he will reform and return to you, as a better man. By reflection, he may see his folly. Keep up good heart. Happier days are coming.

YOU WILL WED
AND BE HAPPY

Dear Miss Libby:—

I am going with a young lady 15 years old. My engaged I have given her an engagement ring. I have gained the consent of her parents. We are to be married in one year. She does not live in this city. In connection with other young men on hay-rides and to parties. Do you think this right? Have I any reason to be jealous?

L. C. W. One who is engaged ought not to go with other young men, or to parties. Avoid jealousy, which is often fatal. Write her a heart-to-heart letter in this regard. Living apart in different towns you have to trust each other's honor. A year rolls by soon. Then you will wed and be happy.

OBJECTS TO HIS COMING HOME

Dear Miss Libby:—I am a girl of 18 in love with a young man 19. He is good in all ways. Father objects to his coming home. Please advise what to do.

V. J. A worthy lover can prove he is all that he should be and there would be no objections. Parent has your heart-interest, and it is right to have both views favorable, if you will prosper.

CONNECTICUT
SUFFRAGE NEWS

The annual convention of the Connecticut Woman Suffrage Association will be held this year in Hartford. The convention is always held towards the end of October, but the exact date was left open by the executive board at its meeting last Wednesday when it had agreed on the place of meeting. Committees were appointed to attend to all details in connection with the convention and when the matter of speakers for the evening meeting has been arranged, the date of the convention will be announced and the calls issued. The convention was held in Hartford both last year and the year before. In 1912 it was held in New Haven, in 1911 in Bridgeport and in 1910 in Greenwich. It has now become the custom to hold it in Hartford because the state headquarters are in this city and it is more convenient to hold the convention where these headquarters are available.

There was a large attendance at the board meeting last Wednesday, as the members of the board are now returning from their summer homes and are settling again to work. The board continues its monthly meetings right through the summer. Those in July and August were held at Fenwick, at the summer home of Mrs. George H. Day. This was for the convenience not only of Mrs. Day and Mrs. Hopburn who both spend their summers in Fenwick, but also of Mrs. Scoddard and Mrs. Frederick Spencer who were then at Madison and Guilford, and of Miss Katherine Ludington, whose home is at Lyme.

In San Francisco all this week a great convention of women voters has been in session. It was organized by the Congressional Union and its object was to find ways and means of using the women's vote in twelve states of the Union to push a federal amendment to the United States Constitution. It is the hope of the women that the amendment will be passed during the coming session of Congress. One reason for hoping that this may be done is that there will be a presidential election in 1916, at which it is of the utmost importance to both parties to secure the votes for the women. If the Susan B. Anthony amendment has been passed by Congress, it will be eliminated as a national issue, because the question will then be before the state legislatures. If the women voters are determined to pass the amendment, they will greatly embarrass both great political parties, and the only way to remove the embarrassment will be for the parties to agree to pass the amendment and so get rid of the issue. This is the opinion of many of the Republican members of Congress, and it is coming to be regarded as more and more probable that it will be generally adopted by politicians.

TODAY'S POEM

THE ROAD NOT TAKEN

Two roads diverged in a yellow wood,
And sorry I could not travel both,
And be one traveler, long I stood
And looked down one as far as I could
To where it bent in the undergrowth.

Then took the other, as just as far,
And having perhaps the better claim,
Because it was grassy and wanted
wear,
Though as for that the passing there
Had worn them really about the same.

And both that morning equally lay
In leaves no step had trodden black.
Oh, I marked the first for another day!
Yet knowing how way leads on to way
I doubted if I should ever come back.

I shall be telling this with a sigh
Somewhere ages and ages hence:
Two roads diverged in a wood, and I,
I took the one less traveled by,
And that has made all the difference.
—Robert Frost in the Atlantic.

CORNER FOR COOKS

VEAL.

Veal, while not so generally popular as beef, offers many opportunities for making most excellent and economical meat dishes. It has to be wholesome, and it does not keep as well as beef before cooking, owing to its peculiar juices. To be in perfection it should be a light pink in color and the meat heavy.

All veal bones are valuable to make the white stock foundation, so they should be used and not thrown away the marketer taking them from the butcher after he has boned a piece of veal for her, instead of leaving them to be sold again.

FRESH BEEF TONGUE.

Fresh beef tongue is one of many strongholds for Sunday-dinner. It costs about half as much as smoked variety and goes further. Soak overnight in strong salt water. Cook the next morning in plenty of water well salted. A half cupful of cooked rice added to this water gives a delicious broth for both lunch and dinner on Saturday. On Sunday the tongue sliced cold, accompanied by jelly or sauce suffices for dinner and tea; and sometimes I cut out from around the roof of the tongue enough scraps of meat to fill a few sandwiches or use in croquettes or hash for Monday's lunch.

SPICED LAYER CAKE.

Beat one-half cup of melted butter and two cups of brown sugar to a cream and add two teaspoons of cinnamon, one-half teaspoon of nutmeg and the beaten yolks of two eggs. Mix and sift 1½ cups of flour with three-quarters teaspoon of soda and add alternately with one-half cup of sour milk, then add one cup of raisins well coated with flour, and finally fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Bake in layers and put together with maple frosting.

MAPLE FROSTING.

Boil one cup of maple sugar, one cup of water and one-eighth teaspoon of cream of tartar until the syrup spins a thread. Pour it on the beaten white of one egg and beat until thick.

YANKEE GRAHAM GEMS.

One-half teaspoon of butter blended with one tablespoon of sugar, 1½ cups of sweet milk, two teaspoons of cream of tartar, one teaspoon of soda, little salt, two-thirds cup of white flour, remainder graham enough to make a stiff dough, and finally fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Bake in layers and put together with maple frosting.

WHIPPED CREAM PIE.

Bake three crusts on separate plates; put together with whipped cream and sprinkle with powdered sugar; do not let it stand before serving or the pastry will soften.

CUCUMBER PICKLES.

One gallon of good vinegar, one cup of fine salt and one-quarter pound of ground mustard. Mix all well and put in small cucumbers as they grow. Keep under the liquid with a plate or board.

ORIENTAL SALAD.

One green pepper, one cup chopped celery, one cup chopped apples, two sliced tomatoes, half a cup chopped walnuts and a few white grapes cut in halves and seeded. Remove the seeds and white fibre from the pepper and cut it finely and add the other ingredients. Chill thoroughly. Dress with mayonnaise and serve on lettuce leaves.

ESCALLOPED SALMON.

Remove the skin and bones from a can of salmon, mash fine with a fork, season with salt, pepper, a tablespoon of lemon juice, two tablespoons of sherry and a little Worcestershire sauce. Mix thoroughly and moisten with milk; butter the shells, fill with the mixture, cover with crumbs and bits of butter and bake 20 minutes in hot oven till light brown.
